Q.7

Read the following passage and answer the questions given at the end:

"The first thing which a scholar should bear in mind is that a book ought not to be read for mere amusement. Some educated persons read for amusement and are none the worse for it; they are incapable of appreciating the deeper and broader literature. But a young man who has passed through a course of university training should discipline himself so that he never reads for mere amusement. Once the habit of discipline has been formed, he will find it impossible to read for amusement. He will then impatiently throw down a book that does not make an appeal to his higher emotions and his intellect. Reading should be for intellectual growth, and any book that does not stimulate the mind is not worth the time spent on it."
